A(RCHIBALD) FENNER BROCKWAY: BARON BROCKWAY

INTRODUCTION.

Lord Brockway first agreed to give his papers to Churchill College in 1979, although he expressed the opinion that they were not especially valuable, since his earlier papers had been lost and he had not kept them systematically since. He also said that they were "in a great mess" and that he would have no time to organise them until there was "less political pressure". The papers were eventually collected from him and brought to the Archives Centre in August 1982. This section of the papers consists of 65 boxes. In 1985 Lord Brockway confirmed that he wished all his papers to be lodged with Churchill College, including those which had been loaned to the Movement for Colonial Freedom and deposited by them at the School of Oriental and African Studies. The SOAS Archivist confirmed that the papers, on examination, were found to be those of Lord Brockway and not part of the records of MCF or Liberation. A further five cartons were therefore collected from SOAS in 1985. These papers fill 18 boxes. The total collection therefore consists of some 83 boxes and but for a few earlier papers cover Lord Brockway's career after his elevation to the Lords in 1964. It is believed that the family hold further papers but to date these have not been received by the College.

Generally all the papers were found to be in fairly good condition. A few had obviously been exposed to water and were stained and had visible mould. All these were treated by the Conservationist. Some early press cuttings were found to be very brittle and were individually refolded in acid free paper, some later ones were so friable that they were copied and the original discarded. The papers received from SOAS were enclosed in cardboard folders with straw board shelf/location markers. All were refolded. The major problem was the fading of carbon copies of correspondence. Condition has been noted in the listing where this may affect use by the words 'fading' and/or 'brittle' and /or 'staining' respectively after the piece count number.

The two sets of papers posed different organisational problems. Although the papers collected directly from Lord Brockway were received in bundles, roughly organised by subject matter, they were much disordered and no structure was apparent, except in the case of the items labelled "Filing" (with dates) which form a chronological sequence from the mid 1970s. Some bundles had no visible date and some had no title or indication of contents, others were labelled 'Misc'. Some titles on examination were found to be inaccurate or incomplete. In view of this it was decided not to attempt to re-sort the papers before cataloguing. Items were therefore catalogued as found retaining the bundles as they had been received from Lord Brockway.

The files which constitute the "Filing" series were found to contain papers of a nature which requires their closure under the Thirty Year Rule, and these files were for safety and security reasons reboxed in chronological order.

Some eight bundles which on examination proved to contain papers dating from before 1950 were carefully resorted and order was imposed within the bundle which was retained as an organising unit. These were catalogued in greater detail. In view of their rarity these files were also reboxed in larger boxes to facilitate the flattening of large press cuttings. The 'cataloguing order' was retained.

Those papers which came to the Archives Centre via Liberation and SOAS had at some stage had a loose subject classification imposed on them, if not by Lord Brockway himself, then certainly with his assistance; the subject headings commonly appearing in the top left hand corner being in his handwriting. Unfortunately the classification was neither consistent in itself nor consistently followed. Files which on examination appeared to overlap were combined; thus, for example, 'Kenya' was collapsed into 'Kenyan Asians' since both contained papers relating to former Kenyan residents attempting to obtain residence in Britain. Many of the files were found to be disordered and to contain papers bearing other classifications. Where this was clearly the result of inconsistency - for example the file 'students' also contains papers marked 'youth'- these were left as they were found. In each case the intention was to leave the papers as far as possible in the groupings which Lord Brockway had intended them to have while reducing the incidence of split classifications. The papers were received in alphabetical order and this was retained as the cataloguing order.

There was a further problem. A large volume of papers was found in files that had been labelled "MISC". There was no discernible order. A number of the papers within these files were also labelled 'misc', but many were not and files for many of these other classifications did not exist. Clearly at some stage the system had been abandoned or had broken down. The 'Misc' classification was retained but chronological order was imposed. The files labelled "Personal" exhibited the same problem and were similarly treated. A further set of papers were found in a file with no title, nor do the papers have any classification. Instead they are bundled in folded papers with a name written onto the wrapper. All these papers concern various cases put before the Home Office and relate to residence, deportations, visas, criminal charges, compensation etc.

From the position of this file in the sequence its title should probably be "Official" and this title has been imposed. These three groupings together with a further file labelled "Invitations" all appear to be split versions of the sequence which in the later papers is called "Filing." This is borne out by the title 'Filing' which appears on one of the folders in which 'Misc' was found and by the fact that some papers are labelled 'filing'. These files have not been recombined, since it was clearly Lord Brockway's intention that they should be split. Only the papers classified as "Official" need to be restricted under the thirty year rule.

Apart from the Correspondence Files, which cover a wide range of subjects the papers were found to fall loosely into the following subject areas: 1) Colonial Government / Colonial freedom movements; 2) Pacifism, Arms control; 3) Nuclear Disarmament & World Peace; 4) Elections / By Elections; 5) Civil Liberties / Human Rights; 6) Ireland; 7) Immigration; 8) Issues raised in Parliament & Legislation; 9) Publications; 10) Personal and Family; 11) Historical - Socialism (most of these classified as "Early").

Unfortunately many bundles in both sections were found to contain unrelated pieces which fell into more than one of these loose classifications. Nor was it possible to classify papers chronologically as many bundles contained papers of considerable date range. The exceptions were the papers on pacifism and nuclear disarmament, which were found in fairly discrete bundles, especially those relating to the formation and conduct of the WDC(UK). These, like the Correspondence Files were listed by subject, the remaining files were listed in their cataloguing order, and indexed. Intending users should consult the index before reading the description of each item and be aware that each subject may be spread over quite a number of files. The files containing "Early" papers were catalogued in greater depth and a separate list of these has also been prepared. However as these items cover a variety of subjects and may also contain unrelated papers of later date these items were also indexed and are included briefly in the main 'as found' list, with a note that the reader should consult the more detailed listing.

a note on terminology:

An "item" is a unit or bundle of papers enclosed within a folder or other container which may or may not bear a title and/or date sometimes having related subject matter. A "piece" is a sheet of paper or unit of papers within the container grouped physically by clips or bundling or by being further contained in an envelope or folder.

format of the entries:

Each item is identified by a single running number (#n). Where pieces within the item are themselves substantial they have been further numbered (#na etc) Individual sheets have not been numbered. Many items bear no visible date. These have /nd/ in the main entry. Any subsequent date in the description has been ascertained from internal evidence.

The format of each main entry is: Item number/title/date/type of container in which the item was found/number of pieces in the item/condition (where relevant). Each main entry is then followed by a brief description of the subject matter(s) and content.

BIOGRAPHICAL DETAILS AND CURRICULUM VITAE.

A(rchibald) Fenner Brockway - Baron Brockway

Lord Brockway was born in 1888 in India, and died 1988 just four months short of his hundredth birthday. He was a vegetarian, a pipe smoker and a whisky drinker. He disliked his given name and adopted Fenner as a preferred name. His two full sisters (Nora and Phyllis) alone continued to use his given name; his half sister, Nellie-Frances, called him Fenner. Both his parents were missionaries and like most European children he was sent back to England at the age of four. He entered Eltham College, which was then the School for the Sons of Missionaries (SSM) in 1896. At school he played rugby and retained a life long interest in all sport, supporting Manchester United ("my team since Munich"). (p238 Towards Tomorrow.)

As a young man he lost the faith of his parents and in 1907 he became a Socialist, which he attributed to the influence of Keir Hardie. Imprisoned during WW1 as a conscientious objector, he described himself as an instinctive pacifist but in later life admitted that he would support the use of force in some instances, for example by colonial peoples seeking freedom.

Lord Brockway was a member of the ILP until 1946. He then joined the Labour Party. He stood for Parliament on eleven occasions in seven constituencies and was elected for two: East Leyton (1929-31) and Eton and Slough (1950-64). He never held office. In 1964 he lost his seat due to his stand on racial issues and accepted a peerage as Baron Brockway of Eton and Slough. He claimed to be a Republican and continued to argue that the Lords should be abolished but that, until it was, he accepted Harold Wilson's argument that "good men" were needed in that House. His wife preferred not to be called Lady Brockway. Towards the end of his life he expressed doubts about the usefulness of the Lords as a platform and admitted that accepting a peerage may have been a mistake (p18 98 Not Out). He gave up active politics only when he became too deaf to hear the debate, restricting himself to written questions, but still spoke occasionally in disarmament debates. He published a great many pamphlets and journal articles and a number of books, including four volumes of autobiography.

Lord Brockway was married twice; first, in 1914, to Lilla Harvey-Smith, from whom he was divorced in 1945, and secondly to Edith King in 1946. He had four daughters from the first marriage and a son, Christopher, from the second. In 1980 he began an association with Margaret Glover, portrait painter and CND activist, and in 1982 separated from Edith and went to live with his third daughter Joan (Hon Mrs Pover). Lord Brockway attributed the move to his increased need for care which Edith, herself elderly, was unable to provide.

Towards the end of his life he divested himself of material possessions. He gave his library to the Indian Cultural Centre, which he had helped to set up, and "donated my papers to Churchill College at Cambridge" (p125 98 Not Out).

FEBR

EARLY PAPERS : TO 1950

Brockway claims in several places that he lost all his pre-war papers when the ILP headquarters was blitzed during the WW2. This is not exactly true. While the majority of the papers deposited with Churchill date from the 1960s onwards, earlier papers, though rare, are not absent entirely. F1975-4 (#157), contains a piece (origin unknown) headed "File Ref. B 292" which says: "Lord Brockway states that many of his papers were destroyed when the ILP office was bombed during WW2. The remaining papers are limited in number, and at present unsorted". Early papers in the Brockway collection, in so far as they occur in compilations marked 'Misc.' or 'Historical', reflect this state of affairs.

In 1950 Brockway was elected Labour member for Eton and Slough. Although he joined the Labour Party in 1947, after breaking with the ILP the year before, this candidature marks his active involvement with the party. He held this constituency until 1964 when he was defeated chiefly on the basis of his stand on race relations. He then translated to The Lords. His election in 1950 therefore marks not only the resumption of his active political career but the public point in his change of allegiance.

Papers dated before 1950 have therefore been considered as early and due to their rarity and importance for a now less well documented period of Brockway's career have been catalogued more fully than later materials. Although the papers are much disordered and the organising principle, if any, is unclear, Brockway's compilations/files have been retained. Thus although all items listed here have some pieces which meet the 'early' classification, the whole item as such may contain later materials. Order within the files has been imposed.

There are two notable exceptions to the 'unsorted' description. Brockway had considerable correspondence with GBS, the majority of which he published - with Shaw's permission - in Outside the Right. The letters were transcribed and published with contextual explanations. They were published again, in less detail, in Towards Tomorrow. Shaw also collaborated with the Prison System Enquiry, and wrote a preface for the report which was not used, several pieces of the correspondence refer to this. Brockway's relationship with GBS is represented in the Brockway papers by items #12, #25 & #79 comprising 47 original letters, proof copies of Shaw's projected preface and other materials. 45 of the original letters have transcripts and instructions for photocopying. This appears to be FB's preparation for Outside the Right. These letters appear pasted up with the prefatory remarks in #79, together with the original of the final 'letter', in fact a preface. There is a further set of transcripts, some marked "not used" which appears to be preparation for Towards Tomorrow. The letters not printed in either book are marked *. In neither case are the letters printed in chronological order.

The other exception is the file "Letters from well knowns" (item #112), which was clearly compiled by Brockway from other sets of correspondence. That his method was not entirely consistent, is shown by the presence of letters from Harold Laski in other files.

The items are listed in the order in which they were found during cataloguing.

FEBR

WORLD DISARMAMENT CAMPAIGN (WDC)

In 1979 Fenner Brockway, together with Lord Philip Noel-Baker, launched a campaign for Nuclear Disarmament. The purpose of the Campaign was to take advantage of the Second UN Special Session on Disarmament, scheduled for 1982, with the idea of having the Final Document from the First Session in 1978 fully implemented. According to FB the idea was first raised quite casually: "We met in a corridor in the House of Lords. Philip, who had been a member of the British team at the Special session, remarked that the Peace Movement was missing a great opportunity.... 'Let's start a campaign,' I said. Philip's eyes lit up and he shook my hand. Thus it began. We were both nearly ninety...". (98 Not Out p76)

The documents in the Brockway collection cover the inception and development of the Campaign, the fundraising attempts, the recruitment drives and the formulation of the appeal for the Signatures on the Petition, which eventually reached a record 2.35 million. The files are untidy and disorganised. Correspondence and Minutes are mixed in with press cuttings and multiple copies of duplicated leaflets and flyers. In many cases the number of pieces in the file has not been recorded, instead the physical dimension of the file in cm has been given.

Because the Brockway papers came into the Archives in 1982, there are no papers relating to the activities of the reformulated Campaign WDC(UK) after the UN Session and the death of Lord Noel-Baker.

Papers NOT directly related to the Campaign but dealing in some way with nuclear disarmament have not been included here. Readers should consult the INDEX.

FEBR CORRESPONDENCE - ALPHABETICAL ORDER -1965 only

[BOX 54]

Item #242 No title/nd/file/8 files.

This item consists of correspondence for 1965. It is alphabetically organised but the sequence is incomplete. Files exist only for C-K & P-Z.

The individual pieces within the files had alphabetical classifications written onto them and order within the files was alphabetical. This alpha set for one year therefore reflects the alpha set for the years 1966-72 which comprises the rest of the collection as it came via SOAS and MCF and is listed above. Some classifications - for example "Capital Punishment" - do not occur in the larger collection. There are also inconsistencies: both Ireland and Northern Ireland occur, while all Middle East records (including CAABU) have been classified as Jordan.

Only significant 'sets' have been noted. (NB The file labelled E-K was split).

C: 30 pieces, includes Capital Punishment; Conscientious Objectors.

D: 8 pieces, includes Diamonds; Disarmament.

E-G: 20 pieces.

H-I & Johnson: 19 pieces, includes Immigrants, Ireland.

Jordan: 26 pieces, includes publications and accounts of FB's visit.

K: 7 pieces of which 2 have K classifications & 5 refer to Northern Ireland.

P-T: 36 pieces, includes personal (1 piece only) and Race Relations.

U-Z: 32 pieces, of which 17 refer to Vietnam & BCPV.

Please request file by giving box number followed by the item number (#) and any sub-numbers (i.e. FEBR 1/#13/2)

FILING (CORRESPONDENCE FILES)

Fenner Brockway was credited with having the largest correspondence of anyone in the House of Lords, and he appears to have conducted this correspondence from a desk originally used by Lord Attlee with the help of one part-time secretary (see Towards Tomorrow p.238). The correspondence is represented in the Brockway papers by the series of folders marked "Filing" and a few folders actually labelled "Pending". These are rare amongst the Brockway papers as being actual working papers in their original order. It appears to have been Brockway's custom to keep ALL correspondence both private and "professional" together, or rather that he made no distinction between private and political life. The correspondence is both incoming and outgoing and is frequently stapled to background materials or other information. The correspondence is both large and wide in range and diversity. Everyone and anyone could and did write to Brockway - who had a high public profile. Most received some kind of answer.

He was often referred to as "the member for Africa" and he appears to have extended the idea of a constituency 'clinic' to include anyone who cared to write to him, passing the letter to the appropriate authority. The letters range from the extremely informal and personal to the most formal in third person governmentese, and from proforma covering notes to detailed explanations of complicated civil rights cases. They are not always in English, not always intelligible and come from all over the world, although the majority come from Britain. The subject matter is extremely varied but apart from the personal and crank letters the subjects covered are largely connected with matters of immigration, race relations, civil rights (especially with regard to Northern Ireland), prisons and prison conditions, and colonial (or former colonial) countries and peoples. They include replies from Government ministers and officials and "off-the-record" materials and information.

Also included in this list are the files of correspondence with and on behalf of the Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants (JCWI). It was Brockway's habit to supply the Secretary with House of Lords paper and allow her to write and sign letters on his behalf. Many of his own letters in the files encourage correspondents to address their enquiries to this Committee. There are separate files for the 1970s, but some correspondence does occur in the general files and in later files this correspondence is integrated with the whole. In view of this and the sensitivity of the materials which concern deportations, visas, imprisonment of illegal immigrants etc. these earlier files have been treated as part of the "Filing" series.

The personal letters include those from his family, particularly his sisters, including many relating to his sister Nora's ill health in old age and death. Also present are a great many from Dorothy Detzer (later Mrs Ludwell Denny) an American who was a Washington Lobbyist. Brockway and DDD, as she signed herself, maintained a frank and affectionate correspondence until her death in 1980.

The papers have been retained in the files in which they were found. Where re-filing was necessary the original grouping was maintained. The files thus represent the units as

Please request file by giving box number followed by the item number (#) and any sub-numbers (i.e. FEBR 1/#13/2)

Brockway created/collected them. The numbers refer to the order in which the files were found during cataloguing and are retained for identification. A running chronological number has also been assigned. Since some files 'turn the year' some have two chronological numbers. The condition of the papers has been noted only where this may affect their use. The most common problem is the deterioration of the carbons of Brockway's reply, especially where these are hand-written on pre-treated 'carbon' paper. This is indicated by 'fading' after the piece count number. The series consists of 65 files, and significant pieces of correspondence within the item have been noted.

In view of the sensitivity of the materials and subjects the series is restricted under the 30 year rule. Closure periods are marked.
