

FACTSHEET ANSWERS

Greta starts skipping school on Fridays to sit outside her country's government buildings, asking leaders to fight harder against climate change.	August 2018
Greta gives a speech at a big meeting for world leaders about climate change, asking them to do more to protect the planet.	December 2018
People suggest Greta for a Peace Prize because she's inspiring others to help stop climate change.	March 2019
Greta sails across the ocean without harming the environment to talk at a big meeting in America about the climate.	August 2019
Greta gives a powerful speech saying "How dare you" to leaders for not doing enough about climate change. It gets a lot of people talking.	September 2019
A famous magazine names Greta the most important person of the year because she's done so much to fight climate change.	December 2019
David Attenborough has been fascinated by the natural world since he was a young boy.	1940s
David presented his first TV series, "Zoo Quest," showing animals from around the world	1954
A ground-breaking show, "Life on Earth" Series, made David a household name, changing how we see the planet's life.	1979
In "Voice for Conservation", David uses his voice and documentaries to tell us about the beauty of our world and why we must protect it.	1980s

FACTSHEET ANSWERS

David's documentary "Blue Planet II" on ocean life showed the harmful effects of plastic pollution, inspiring global change.	2017
In "A Life on Our Planet", David shares his witness statement for the natural world, urging us all to take action to save our planet.	2020
Vanessa Nakate was deeply moved by the climate issues affecting her home country, Uganda, leading her to activism.	Early days
Vanessa begins her climate activism journey, motivated by a desire to combat the disproportionate impact of climate change on Africa.	2018
Vanessa launches the Youth for Future Africa and the Rise Up Movement Africa to advocate for the use of renewable energy and address climate change impacts.	2019
Vanessa gains global attention after being cropped out of a photo at the World Economic Forum in Davos, sparking discussions on representation in climate activism.	January 2020
Vanessa challenges world leaders at international forums, advocating for climate justice and urgent action to combat global warming.	2020
Vanessa publishes her book, "A Bigger Picture," sharing her journey and calling for inclusive representation in the climate movement.	2021
Xiuhtezcatl started helping the Earth when he was very young because he loves nature.	Early days
Xiuhtezcatl gave a big talk at the United Nations, telling people we need to help our planet.	2013

FACTSHEET ANSWERS

Xiuhtezcatl and other kids asked the government to do a better job protecting the air for all of us.	2015
Xiuhtezcatl wrote a book called We Rise to tell young people they can help the Earth too.	2017
Xiuhtezcatl spoke again at the United Nations, saying it's really important to look after our world.	2019
Xiuhtezcatl makes music that shares his love for the Earth and tells us why we should protect it.	2020
Growing up in Uganda, Leah saw how climate change was hurting her country, Uganda, and knew she had to do something about it.	Early days
Leah decided to stand up for the Earth by skipping school on Fridays, asking leaders to save our planet.	February 2019
When Leah turned 15, Leah didn't want a regular party. Instead, she planted 200 trees to help the Earth breathe.	August 2019
Leah didn't like how plastic bags were everywhere, hurting animals and nature. So, she started asking people to stop using them.	August 2019
Leah had a big idea – what if everyone planted a tree on their birthday? She started a project to make it happen.	2020
Leah's Birthday Trees project gains momentum, encouraging people worldwide to plant trees on their birthdays as a gift to the Earth.	2021

FACTSHEET ANSWERS

From a young age, Jamie could see the effects of climate change and knew she wanted to protect the Earth.	Early days
At 16, Jamie co-founded Zero Hour, a movement that empowers young people to take action on climate change.	2017
Jamie helped organize a youth climate march in Washington, D.C., and across the globe to demand climate action.	2018
Jamie spoke out against pollution and fought for laws to ensure cleaner air and a healthier environment.	Early 2019
Jamie took her message to the U.S. Congress, bravely telling politicians why urgent climate action is needed.	September 2019
Jamie wrote a book, Youth to Power: Your Voice and How to Use It, to share her journey and inspire others to join the fight against climate change.	2020

